Hi, boys and girls!

My name is Adam Burke. Are you interested in buying a special lunch bag to protect our environment? When I was in sixth grade, I noticed that many of my classmates carried paper lunch bags. I found out that from sandwich wrappers to disposable drink containers, the average school kid generates 65 pounds of lunch bag waste every year. To help kids cut down on lunch bag waste, I have invented a reusable lunch bag, which I am now selling on my website. It has handles and a front pocket. And the fabric is partially made from recycled plastic bottles. You will like it because you can fold it up and put it in your backpack. If you'd like to buy one, please feel free to visit www.myblog.com/aburke.

24. 다음 글의 요지로 가장 적절한 것은?

When people expect to see someone again, they are more likely to find that person attractive, regardless of the individual's behavior, than if they do not have expectations of future interaction. The expectation of future interaction motivates people to look for positive qualities in someone so that they will look forward to future interactions rather than dread them, and increases the chances that people will find the individual attractive. Conversely, when people interact with someone whom they do not foresee meeting again, they have little reason to search for positive qualities. In fact, doing so may be depressing, given that they may not have the opportunity to get to know the person better in future interactions. Indeed, people are sometimes motivated to find negative qualities in individuals whom they do not expect to see again.

- ④ 타인에 대한 평가 기준으로 성격이 외모보다 우선시된다.
- ⑤ 첫인상은 상대방과의 향후 관계를 예측하는 기준이 된다.

25. 다음 글의 주제로 가장 적절한 것은?

Lone animals rely on their own senses to defend themselves, but an animal in a group benefits by having a lot of other animals' eyes, ears, and noses on the alert for danger. An animal in a group also has a smaller chance of being the unlucky individual picked out by a predator. In addition, a group of animals fleeing from a predator can create confusion. This makes it harder for a predator to focus on one animal to catch. A school of fish will split in two to avoid a predator and then quickly regroup behind it. A herd of zebras can become a dazzling display of black and white stripes, making it more difficult for a lion to see where one zebra ends and another begins.

33. 다음 글에 드러난 Kate의 심경 변화로 가장 적절한 것은?

Kate ran to the mailbox as soon as the mail truck drove away. She opened the mailbox and reached into the dark space. Her hope quickly disappeared, however. There was nothing addressed to her. It was her sixteenth birthday today, but there wasn't even a birthday card from her father. "I didn't get anything from Dad," said Kate to her mother. "I can't believe he forgot my birthday." Kate's father was a doctor, and every summer he went to Africa to treat people who were too poor to go to a hospital. "Well, he didn't forget your birthday, Kate. I was going to give this to you at your birthday party this afternoon," said her mother, giving her a small pink box with a purple ribbon, which arrived from Africa the day before. "Yeah, I knew Dad wouldn't let me down!" shouted Kate, smiling the sweetest smile.

34. Do you remember the childlike joy you felt the last time you found a parking spot at the mall on a crowded day? When you finished shopping, you may have left the spot with a certain hesitation, particularly if someone else was waiting for it. Studies have shown that people take longer to leave a parking spot when another driver is waiting, even though they predict they will not. It's as if the space suddenly becomes more valuable once another person wants it. Strictly speaking, it is no longer valuable to the person leaving it. After all, it seems that our brains are so _____ that once we have been given something, we are hesitant to give it up. [3점]

- ① sensitive to loss
- ② resistant to order
- ③ receptive to new ideas
- ④ easily exposed to illness
- ⑤ reluctant to deal with time

35. Wood is a material that is widely acknowledged to be environmentally friendly. It has been welcome as an alternative material for a long time in building houses instead of cement or bricks. However, it is not always easy to _____ of one particular material such as wood over another. Many species of tree are now endangered, including mahogany and teak, and deforestation, particularly in tropical rainforests, has had a severe impact both on local communities and on native plants and wildlife. Where wood is harvested and then transported halfway across the globe, the associated energy costs are high, causing a negative impact on the environment. What is more, where wood is treated with chemicals to improve fire- and pest-resistance, its healthful properties are compromised. [3점]

* mahogany: 마호가니(적갈색 열대산 목재)

- ① increase the inherent resistance
- ② favor the chemical properties
- ③ dominate the natural habitats
- ④ evaluate the relative merits
- ⑤ deny the cost advantage

36. Human farmers and their domesticated plants and animals made a grand bargain, though the farmers did not realize it at the time. Consider maize. Domestication made it dependent on man. But its association with humans also carried maize far beyond its origins as a little-known Mexican grass, so that it is now one of the most widely planted crops on earth. From mankind's point of view, meanwhile, the domestication of maize made available an abundant new source of food. But its cultivation (like that of other plants) prompted people to adopt a new lifestyle based on farming. Is man taking advantage of maize for his own purposes, or is maize taking advantage of man? Domestication, it seems, is _____. [3점]

* maize: 옥수수

- ① a pain in the neck ② an unfair sacrifice
③ a two-way street ④ a request for help
⑤ a zero-sum game

Power walking is a type of exercise that nearly anyone can do. ① Many people enjoy this form of exercise because it can be done outdoors in fresh air where the scenery can be changed by altering the course of the walk. ② Alternatively, the exercise may be done indoors, in a climate-controlled environment, on a treadmill. ③ People should start with a short distance on flat ground and gradually increase the distance and intensity. ④ Instruct people to sit on the bench and to start reading their newspapers carefully. ⑤ While power walking, people should wear shoes with a good arch support to avoid injury and wear clothes appropriate for the climate.

To create a unifying theme for the many crowd scenes, he invented a character of a backpacking tourist who would appear in each location.

In 1986, Martin Handford, a young British commercial artist who specialized in drawing cartoon scenes for clients, had the idea of publishing his illustrations in book form. (①) His idea was to depict humorous crowd scenes in various locations, including a beach, a train station, and a country fair. (②) In the original British editions of the book, the character's name was Wally. (③) He went on to publish seven more Where's Wally books, create a television show, and license several video games. (④) Although the fad for his character declined in the late 1990s, there is still occasional talk of a Wally movie. (⑤) Wally is licensed in at least 17 countries, where he looks pretty much the same but often goes by different names.

Most of the words we use and the meanings we think about are a combination of simpler ideas.

- (A) Some of them are specialized for sitting at certain high places, like bar stools. If you learned about a culture in which a certain type of chair was used only for the purpose of sitting while waiting for a bus, you might think this is odd but would have no difficulty understanding it.
- (B) Consider a chair. Before you can have an idea of a chair, you need to understand that there exist in the world certain functional objects. Some of these objects support human activity, in this case, sitting.
- (C) The combination of the concepts chair and waiting for bus allows you to create the new complex concept chair used while waiting for bus. But the basic concept of chair is built out of the simpler ideas that we take for granted: object, furniture, sitting.

Effective communication is vital to achieving wellness because our daily interactions with others are important factors in our emotional health. People who have developed a high degree of communication skills are more likely to have the potential for deeper bonds in their personal relationships than non-communicators. Perhaps the greatest communication satisfaction comes from our close relationships, which are the main source of our emotional health. Close relationships develop when two people can exchange emotional messages easily and effectively. Whether we develop effective communication skills that promote healthy interactions depends largely on how we learn to communicate. For example, interaction between parents and their children is often important in determining whether a child is shy or unafraid of interaction. Good parents listen to their children and allow them to talk about their fears and unhappiness. Children raised in households that _____ communication find it easier to talk to others about their disappointments, fears, frustrations, and other emotions later in life. Such individuals find that they ultimately have better emotional health.

The school orchestra was practicing in the auditorium, and Mr. Grey was clapping his hands to mark the rhythm when he heard the town emergency siren. “Stop! Everyone!” he shouted. Then, he ran to the door and pushed it open. But a burst of wind slammed the door right back, and it hit him hard. He fell down and didn’t move. Janet was the oldest kid. And (a) she knew instantly. This was a tornado.

(B)

Looking at the kids around her, Janet yelled as loudly as (b) she could, “Rick and Matt, get Mr. Grey on that cart and roll him over here! They ran to where the curtain hung along the wall of the stage.

(C)

Janet grabbed the edge of the curtain and screamed, “Everyone, grab hold and pull!” When the curtain fell, they pulled it over the tops of the music stands and the grand piano. Then, (c) she motioned everyone to get under the curtain. The wind noise rose again, but Janet was now safely hidden inside the piano and curtain fort with the rest of the orchestra. Relieved, they thanked one another and felt oneness in their hearts.

(D)

Kids were shocked to see Mr. Grey fall down, and they began screaming. Nikki put (d) her mouth next to Janet's ear and yelled, "We need help!" Janet was scared too, but she fought the fear. Janet pulled Nikki and ran over to the grand piano. She grabbed the whistle out of her bag and blew it hard three times. Every kid on the stage turned to look at Janet. In three seconds, all kids were gathered around (e) her.
